 No, do not remember this device. Recommended for public/shared devices.

By submitting your information, you agree the Prudential Terms of Use and Services, Terms of Use.

Finish up by identifying account security questions and answers.

You will now have the option to choose electronic delivery of account-related correspondence.

During the process Prudential will automatically text you a unique security code to the mobile number you provided. Enter this code to verify your identity. Once your account has been authenticated – you're all set!

If you do not have a mobile phone, or your identity was not fully validated through the mobile phone number you provided, Prudential will mail a unique six-digit code via U.S. Postal Service.

It should be noted that, for your security, certain transactions and account information (such as personal information, address changes, bank information, payment settings, loans and withdrawals) are not accessible until you complete the account authentication process by entering your unique six-digit security code.
