OSH Circular 2021-05 (12 May 2021)

Taking Unnecessary Risks

Shortcuts and other forms of risk taking have no place in today's marine cargo handling operations. When they fail (and they often do), they tend to require more time and effort to correct. Moreover, taking risks in our industry can cause accidents which often result in horrible outcomes.

There's no benefit in operating with risky behavior. It hurts all of us. Take your time and do it right, so that we can all go home in the same good shape we got to work in.
